PART I ORIGINAL ARTICLES

REVIEW

Recent trends in fisheries geographic information systems	William L. Fisher	003-026
---	--------------------------	---------

HABITATS

Long-term changes in the relative abundance and distribution of spear squid, Loligo bleekeri , in relation to sea water temperature in the south-western Japan Sea during the last three decades	Yongjun Tian	027-046
Analysis of the space-time variation of emperor ( Lethrinus ) in the Arabian sea, 1996-2004	Lubna L. Al-Kharusi Claire H. Jarvis	047-066
Application of geostatistical methods to evaluate the spatial variability of European hake ( Merluccius merluccius Linnaeus, 1758) in the Central Mediterranean Sea	Matteo Murenu Andrea Ortu Danila Cuccu Angelo Cau	067-084

HABITATS AND REMOTE SENSINGS

Mapping seagrass beds in Funakoshi Bay, Sanriku Coast, Japan, using an IKONOS high-precision multi-spectral image and GIS Tatsuyuki Sagawa technology	Tatsuyuki Sagawa Atsuko Mikami Teruhisa Komatsu Naoko Kosaka Akinori Kosako Sanae Miyazaki Masahiro Takahashi	085-096
Mapping and quantifying a Sargassum forest off Osaka (Toyama Bay, the Sea of Japan) by using narrow multibeam sonar and GIS	Teruhisa Komatsu Yasuaki Matsuoka Koji Shibata Takahiko Ikemori Noriyuki Okei	097-114
The efficient coupling of GIS and acoustic survey in mapping fish abundance around a hill: the Hachirigase case study	Hideaki Tanoue Akira Hamano Teruhisa Komatsu Etienne Boisnier	115-128

MIGRATION

Locating dynamical processes of fish migration in a temperature field	Boonchai K. Stensholt Åge Høines	129-146
---	---	---------

ABUNDANCE ESTIMATION

Biomass estimate of a mixed-species Sargassum forest using aerial photography, field survey and Geographic Information Systems	Atsuko Mikami Teruhisa Komatsu Masakazu Aoki Tatsuyuki Sagawa	147-160
Using maximum entropy methods to calculate an index of abundance for prawn stocks, based on vessel monitoring system derived catch and effort data	Norm M. Good David Peel	161-180
An analysis of dolphinfish abundance related to environmental factors, using satellite-derived data and fishery-dependent data from the United States and Venezuelan longline fleets	Kristin Kleisner Joshua Sladek Nowlis Don Olson David Die	181-196
Incorporating spatial autocorrelation into the General Linear Model with an application to the yellowfin tuna ( Thunnus albacares ) longline CPUE data	Tom Nishida Ding-Geng Chen	197-212

MANAGEMENTS

A technique for using Geographic Information Systems to summarize trawl fish species composition and fishing effort	Janet Mason	213-226
Comparison of release timing of hatchery-reared juvenile chum salmon ( Oncorhynchus keta ) to spring coastal sea surface temperature during high and low survival period	Yasuyuki Miyakoshi Sei-ichi Saitoh Atsushi Matsuoka Masayuki Takada Hiroki Asami Makoto Fujiwara Mitsuhiro Nagata	227-240
Predicting potential habitat for albacore tuna ( Thunnus alalunga ) in the north-western North Pacific Ocean using remote sensing and GIS	Mukti Zainuddin Katsuya Saitoh Sei-Ichi Saitoh	241-258
A software toolkit to analyse Vessel Monitoring System (VMS) data from longline fisheries	Pedro Bordalo-Machado Ricardo Tavares Sousa João Gustavo Matos	259-274
Fisheries enforcement-unlock the potential benefits of satellite surveillance?	Brendan O'Shea	275-284
A spatially explicit resource-based approach for managing stream fishes in riverscapes	Céline Le Pichon Guillaume Gorges Philippe Boët Jacques Baudry François Goreaud Thierry Faure	285-310

PART II INFORMATION PAPERS

SOFTWARE AND SYSTEMS

A ubiquitous information system for the offshore fisheries activities around Japan	Hidetada Kiyofuji Fumihiko Takahashi Daichi Tachikawa Mihoko Abe Kazuhiko Tateyama Motoki Hiraki Sei-ichi Saitoh	313-324
New Zealand's National Aquatic Biodiversity Information System (NABIS) : a case study in building a web-based GIS for policy makers and planners	Kim Duckworth	325-340
Next-generation Marine Geographic Information Systems	Environmental Simulation Laboratory	341-346

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS (HABITATS)

Monitoring the distribution of post-larval stages of Japanese anchovy ( Engraulis japonicus ) ( shirasu ) in the Kii Channel, Japan, using a quantitative echo-sounder	Atsumu Watanabe Kazushi Miyashita Ryuichi Matsukura Saho Morioka Yoshihiro Ikewaki Keisuke Mori	347-360
Application of Bayesian inference techniques based on Geographic Information Systems (GIS) to determine the relationship between tuna fishing grounds and environmental factors	Xuedong Chen Fan Wei Cui Xue Sen	361-370
Estimation of the localization of pelagic fish schools using data from scanning-sonar survey	Kazutoshi Watanabe Koki Abe Yoshimi Takao Tomoyuki Itoh Kouichi Sawada	371-386
Analyzing floodplain and aquatic nursery habitat of the Rio Grande silvery minnow at different hydrologic flows	Joseph Fluder Michael D. Porter Burt McAlpine	387-398

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS (MANAGEMENTS)

An application of GIS and dynamic cluster analysis to spatial data on the tuna purse seine fishery in the Western and Central Pacific Ocean	Guo-ping Zhu Liu-xiong Xu Song Yang Xin-jun Chen	399-414
Application of environmental domain analysis for predicting freshwater fish distribution at a regional scale	Sanjeev K. Srivastava Brian G. Lees	415-430
Delineating recommendation domains for small-scale freshwater aquaculture: deploying GIS for decision support	Suan Pheng Kam Mark Prein Madan Dey	431-444
